

The celebrated Anthem South Asian Studies series continues to lead the field with first rate studies on history, sociology, anthropology and economics. The series addresses academic and professional audiences, and confronts issues of colonialism and post-colonialism, economic development, and the religious and political dynamic of the region. Titles in the series have earned an excellent reputation for the originality of their scholarship and their high production values.

PROPOSALS

We welcome submissions of proposals for challenging and original works that meet the criteria of this series. Should you wish to send in a proposal for a collection of essays, a single or multi-authored monograph, or a course reader, please contact us at: proposal@wpcpress.com

Sub-Series Editorial Boards

Anthem Modern South Asian History

Tirthankar Roy (series editor) – LSE [UK] • Subho Basu – Syracuse [USA] • Douglas Haynes – Dartmouth [USA] • David Ludden – NYU [USA] • Nandini Gooptu – Oxford [UK] • Dilip Menon – Delhi [India]

Diversity and Plurality in South Asia

Nandini Gooptu (series editor) – Oxford [UK] • Christophe Jaffrelot – CERI/CNRS [France] • Raka Ray – Berkeley [USA] • John Zavos – Manchester [UK] • Niraja G. Jayal – JNU [India] • Yunas Samad – Bradford [UK]

India's Changing Role in the Global Political Economy

Anthony P. D'Costa (series editor) – Copenhagen Business School [Denmark] • Govindan Parayil – Oslo [Norway] • E. Sridharan – UPIASI [India] • Kunal Sen – Manchester [UK] • Aseema Sinha – Wisconsin, Madison [USA]

Anthem Press is a distinguished independent international publishing house pioneering a distinctive approach to the publishing of serious works across a wide range of subjects that appeal to academics, area specialists, students and researchers, professionals as well as to general readers.