Ny strategisk alliance:

15. juni 2006 annoncerede to af de førende business schools i CEMS en ny strategisk alliance:

ESADE and HEC, co-founders in 1989 of the CEMS Network, continue in 2006 to support the development of the CEMS both inside and outside of Europe. At the same time, they have now committed themselves to increase synergies between their two faculties and to further develop cooperation between programs.

A strategic alliance encompassing all dimensions of the activities of the two schools:

- Double-degree agreements for both MBA & and Master of Science of Management programs

- Joint faculty projects for teaching and research in key disciplines, such as strategy and governance, management control, logistics, innovation, management of art and culture, languages, human resource management, and finance and law
- Joint faculty recruitment and development
- Joint programs abroad (Latin America, Eastern Europe, Asia, and the Mediterranean zone)

Faculty interactivity will form the core of the alliance. Examples of already developed activity which will produce greater synergies are:

- The development of ten significant projects covering the breadth of all key management disciplines
- The “Young Faculty Research Seminar,” to encourage the interaction of recently recruited faculty members from both institutions. The second meeting of this group will be held June 16.

The alliance also includes an important joint new initiative - the creation of the “ESADE-HEC CEO-Board Forum,” an elite group of directors, CEOs and business experts from ESADE and HEC faculty – orientated towards the exchange of corporate experiences, joint research endeavors, and the formulation of educational proposals regarding Corporate Governance and Social Responsibility.

Finally, the alliance will be unique through a separate collaboration agreement between the two alumni associations, which when combined represent up to 50,000 graduates worldwide.
