

Department of Operations Management Research Committee:

The Research Committee of the Department of Operations Management serves the broad purpose of coordinating and alleviating departmental issues regarding research and championing the department strategies that concern research.

The committee provide support and guidance regarding academic synergy and knowledge sharing.

A central role for the committee is to ensure that senior and tenured faculty assist and cultivate the academic talent present at the department. It is also instrumental in ensuring a free flow among faculty of knowledge about e.g. methodology, publishing, organizing research and other research related themes. The committee fulfills this role by helping faculty in maturing their ideas for internal seminars, workshops, discussions online and offline and other vehicles for dialogue and knowledge sharing across the department. The committee is furthermore active in securing an inclusive and international research environment, and in initiating and maintaining internationalization efforts.

The committee ensures the salience of external funding and relations.

Another role for the committee is to make sure that the department's external funding strategy is adhered to. The department has a strong network of business and other societal associates that provides the department with valuable access to data, opportunities for dissemination and sources of external funding. This network should be nurtured, and the committee plays a role in strengthening the ethical and administrative salience of external funding efforts.

The committee supports publication activities in line with the department's identity and ambition.

To help all faculty continue and develop our publishing culture and pursue the strategic ambitions, the committee should assist with facilitating feedback on pre-submissions, inviting editors from the OM12 list, guide junior faculty towards attractive publication options, developing departmental collaborations on apt special issues and reviewing the publication efforts on an annual level. Such activities are essential to maintain a distinct identity in the type and nature of the research carried out by the department as exemplified in the department's publication strategy.

The committee has 5 members. Members of the committee are selected by the Head of Department.

The current members are:

- Professor Juliana Hsuan
- Professor Jan Mouritsen
- Associate Professor Leonardo Santiago
- Associate Professor Thomas Frandsen
- Head of Department Carsten Ørts Hansen

The committee meets four times a year.
