Summary

I have a master's degree (M.Sc.) in Business Studies and Educational Studies from Roskilde University, and a PhD in Organisation and Management Studies from CBS. I have worked for four years as an Assistant Professor at Roskilde University Department of Communication, Business and Information Technologies, and have 20 years of different teaching experiences from various academic institutions.

My academic interest are “odd” organizational forms. E.g. project-based organizations, volunteer organizations and movements, hybrid forms, activism, and networks. How do they function and evolve? What are their role in forming society and people’s lives? How are they are managed and developed?

As a full time, Teaching Associate Professor, my interest evolves around developing “academic craftsmanship”. Most of the students at higher education today, are not going to be researchers and scholars, but working academic professionals, in their fields and professions. Learning to be an academic professional, requires both understanding and mastering scientific theories and methods, and the ability to apply them to specific filed-related problems and solutions.
