SUMMARY

Len Seabrooke is Professor of International Political Economy and Economic Sociology at the Department of Business and Politics at the Copenhagen Business School. His work is known for its interdisciplinarity – drawing on political science, economic sociology, organization studies, and management studies. Seabrooke's current research concentrates on transnational professionals across a range of cases, from financial reform experts, to tax justice activists and private sector tax experts, to diplomatic consultants, to sustainability experts, and professionals dealing with demographic issues, among others. Seabrooke's work has appeared in leading journals, including American Sociological Review, Governance, International Studies Quarterly, Journal of European Public Policy, Organization, Public Administration, Review of International Political Economy, and many others. According to Google Scholar, his work has been cited over 2900 times (h index 28, i index 49). He was a Co-Editor of Review of International Political Economy (2006-2012) and an Associate Editor of International Studies Quarterly (2014-2018). As Principal Investigator Seabrooke is a former recipient of grants from the European Research Council, European Commission, Danish Research Council, and the Norwegian Research Council. He was the Chief Scientist of the ENLIGHTEN project (2015-2018) funded under the European Commission's Horizon 2020 program (until March 2018), and has recently led projects for the Institute for New Economic Thinking and Transparency International-EU. Over his career Seabrooke has raised €5,88 million as the lead author and €17,88 million as co-author on research grants (€23,76 million in total). He has a long history of institution building, particularly in research capacity, as well as the development of interdisciplinary teaching programs.
