BIOGRAPHY

Caroline de la Porte studies the political and institutional transformation of European governance, focusing on how political actors shape policies and governance instruments. Her broader research agenda examines why and how major societal challenges, such as demographic ageing, but also geopolitical insecurity and the green transition, are reshaping the politics of European integration. Her current research adopts a multi-level perspective to examine the EU's evolving role in social regulation and gender equality, including how European policies interact with national institutions and businesses to shape the opportunities and constraints citizens face in combining paid work, care and life outside work.

SELECTED CONTRIBUTIONS

EU policy coordination and the Open Method of Coordination (OMC)

My first research strand examines the politics underpinning the emergence, development and impact of the Open Method of Coordination (OMC). Key publications include:

- de la Porte, C. and Palier, B. (2022) "The politics of European Union social investment initiatives", in Garritzman, J., Hauserman, S. and Palier, B., World Politics of Social investment, Oxford University Press, 132-170.

EU economic and fiscal governance

My second research strand examines the political and institutional transformation of the aims, instruments and enforcement mechanisms of EU socio-economic governance. It investigates how these political alterations – from austerity-driven to expansionary – change the process of European integration. Key publications include:

- Armingeon, K., de la Porte, C., Heins, E. and Sacchi, S. (2022). Voices from the past: economic and political vulnerabilities in the making of next generation EU. Comparative European Politics (20), 144 – 165.

- de la Porte, C. & Heins, E. (2015). "A new era of European Integration? Governance of labour market and social policy since the sovereign debt crisis." Comparative European Politics, 13(1), 8–28.

EU social regulation and gender equality

My third research strand examines the transformation of EU social governance, towards binding regulation. Focusing on the Work-Life Balance Directive, I investigate the political dynamics driving this shift, the political responses of member states, the influence of the directive on father-specific leave, and the potential of EU regulation to advance gender equality.

Key publications include:

- de la Porte, C., Im, Z., Pircher, B., Ramos Martin, N., & Szelewa, D. (2023). An examination of 'instrumental resources' in earmarked parental leave: The case of the work–life balance directive. Journal of European Social Policy, 33(5), 525- 539.
